First, need to change float to double. Second, change printf into cout. Use setRe and setIm instead of using pointer. In C we change the rational number into a complex to do the calculation. I think the advantage of C++ we can print out a complex numbers easier than using C. We also do the calculation easier in C++. The disadvantage is you need to type 31 functions and almost three hundred lines of .cpp.